I advise international individuals and families in relation to inbound UK investment and relocating to the UK. I also advise trustees, beneficiaries, family offices, and private banks in relation to governance, succession planning and trust law.

The majority of my work is cross-border, which often involves complex international treaty and conflict of law issues. However, I seek to minimise complexity wherever possible and provide clients with practical, commercial, usable advice. My advice normally encompasses both business and private assets and my clients range from technology entrepreneurs to dynastic business-owning families.

I have a particular focus on working with clients in the Far East, especially Hong Kong, Singapore and Malaysia, in relation to the succession of family investment companies as well as listed and unlisted owner-managed family businesses.

Fieldfisher's Private Client team were named in the 2020 ePrivateClient Top Law Firms rankings

I am a member of the Society of Trusts and Estates Practitioners (STEP). In my spare time I enjoy running, playing tennis, skiing and snowboarding.
