I am a member of the Intellectual Property and Technology Protection and Enforcement team, based in Manchester. I practice in all areas of intellectual property litigation including copyright, database rights, design rights, trade marks and patents. I regularly act for clients in relation to disputes concerning confidential information and trade secrets. In addition, and as part of reputation management, I also specialise in proceedings for libel, slander and malicious falsehood. I have experience of conducting legal proceedings in both the High Court and the Intellectual Property Enterprise Court.

I work with a variety of high end to high street fashion designers and retailers, including household names, assisting in the protection of their intellectual property rights. I also work with an array of commercial entities in various sectors assisting in the protection and enforcement of their key brands, trademarks and product technologies. I advise both individuals and businesses in the protection of their reputations in the media and online.

I have First Class LLB from the University of Manchester, a Distinction in the BCL and a Diploma in Intellectual Property Law from the University of Oxford. I have published articles in the Oxford Journal of Intellectual Property Law and Practice, The European Intellectual Property Review and The Intellectual Property Quarterly.
