I work and advise on a wide variety of construction projects, including energy, infrastructure, PFI, healthcare and facilities management. I have strong knowledge of both standard and bespoke construction contracts and have been seconded to a leading construction company in the UK which allowed me to understand and appreciate the business workings and priorities of construction clients.

I have also worked on a number of disputes resulting in successful outcomes for my clients, including a dispute relating to defects at a football stadium and another relating to delay on an infrastructure project.

In particular, I specialise in energy and renewables, having previously trained and worked within a leading renewable energy investment and development company. I have assisted in the development and completion of a number of renewable energy projects, including over 310MW of solar PV assets and 50MW of battery storage and have successfully advised clients on a variety of disputes arising from renewable energy projects, such as the exercise of the performance regime and defects in construction and equipment.
