I have a double degree in Law and Business Administration. Over the course of my career I have specialised in the defence of judicial and pre-judicial matters involving Civil and Commercial Law, providing legal advice to both national and international large corporations in a wide array of legal areas such as real estate, insurances, construction, information and communication technologies, data protection and liability of company directors.

In the financial sector, I have collaborated with significant financial institutions and investment funds, successfully advising them in numerous judicial and insolvency proceedings as well as participating in noteworthy due diligence processes. This has invested me with a solid approach to the financial and banking market.

Additionally, I have also taught as visiting Professor of the Master for Access to the Legal Profession of the Instituto Superior de Derecho y Economía (ISDE).
