I provide support to businesses in the managing of every aspect connected to the relationships between employers and employees. I have been practicing in courts throughout Italy. I work across dispute cases relating to subordinate labour, self-employment, administrative sanctions from INPS and DTL reports and debt notices, individual and collective dismissals, harassment, deskilling, tasks change, compensation for pecuniary and non-pecuniary damage, transfers and wage difference. I also have specialist knowledge in flexible employment relations.

I provide counselling and assistance to my clients, namely both national and multinational companies across many sectors, including industrial, commercial, banking, maritime and postal.

In addition to this I work on ordinary labour relations management as for operations such as business transfers and restructuring.

Before joining Fieldfisher I worked primarily with an Italian law firm specialising in labour law.

I am a Doctor (PhD) of labour law at Università La Sapienza of Rome.

I regularly speak at conferences and seminars on the subject of labour law and author many articles in specialised legal journals.

I advise my clients in Italian and English.
