I am Head of Fieldfisher's Pensions practice and advise employers large and small, pension scheme trustees, pension product providers and financial institutions.

I help them navigate the complex world of pensions law on day-to-day matters, scheme restructurings, winding up schemes, investment and litigation issues.

Most of my major clients have been trusting me with their pensions legal issues for over 10 years and I am considered to be a leading individual in pensions law.

I work in the energy and natural resources sector for a number of electricity industry pension scheme. In the banking and financial services sector I have helped a number of banks develop products for secured lending to executive pension schemes. And in the transport sector I have helped trustees through a number of major pensions projects..

I have a detailed working knowledge of the additional requirements imposed on employers involved in public sector schemes including the Fair Deal and Best Value rules involved in outsourcing and other staff transfers.
