I practise in all areas of public and regulatory law. I assist clients seeking to challenge or defend decisions made by public bodies. I also work on internal and independent inquiries, including non-statutory reviews and investigations as well as fitness to practise cases.

I am a member of the Association of Regulatory and Disciplinary Lawyers.

During my training at Fieldfisher, I gained experience in public, regulatory and competition law, dispute resolution, data protection and structured finance.

I completed a degree in History at the University of Cambridge before I converted to law and obtained my LPC at the University of Law.
