I am a highly experienced litigator with over 25 years' experience in representing clients at all court levels, including the Commercial Court, Court of Appeal and Supreme Court across the commercial, insurance, and public sectors.

I specialise in the resolution of commercial disputes and have significant experience in commercial litigation, insurance claims & disputes and property related cases.

I advise clients on all manner of claims for breach of contract, shareholder disputes, specific performance litigation, judicial reviews, professional indemnity claims, planning and environmental law, injunctions, Norwich Pharmacal Orders and procurement law issues.

I represent most domestic and numerous international underwriters and re-insurers. I advise some of Ireland's most successful organisations and regularly conduct High Court and Commercial Court litigation on their behalf.

I regularly represent employers at the Workplace Relations Commission and The Labour Court in respect of employment related disputes.

I advise clients on health and safety risks, defend organisations & executives in respect of Health and Safety Authority inspections and prosecutions, and represent clients in respect of coroner inquests and any related civil proceedings that follow.

I have specialist experience advising clients on cyber-crime and legal issues relating to cyber protection measures, and I also provide training in this area.

I provide advice that is clear and concise, communicating technical concepts in a way that is accessible for clients. I am a CEDR accredited mediator who regularly represents clients in mediation and also acts as a mediator.

I regularly present lectures, training and workshops, for the Insurance Institute of Ireland and its members in relation to litigation and insurance matters.

What others say...

“ Killian O'Reilly of Fieldfisher defends insurers and self-insured corporates in EL/PL claims relating to catastrophic injuries or serious illnesses. He also has experience on the claimant side of coverage disputes. Interviewees value his collaborative approach, saying: "We can sit down and go through files to agree strategies, which means that everyone knows where they stand and how the case is progressing." ”

Chambers Europe 2021
