My professional career spans more than 15 years as counsel for companies in the pharmaceutical and healthcare sector. I specialise in regulatory law, in particular, in sectoral codes of conduct and compliance policies applicable to the pharmaceutical sector. I have also worked as an in-house legal counsel for companies in the aforementioned field to help them implement internal procedures for compliance with codes of conduct, and I have experience in negotiating all types of contracts for companies in the pharmaceutical and healthcare sector.

I previously worked at Fieldfisher's Litigation Department, thus I have been able to transfer my earlier work experience in handling the management of contentious procedures of companies in the pharmaceutical and healthcare sector against government as well as before regular courts and oversight bodies responsible for the application of sectoral codes.

I collaborate on a regular basis with several journals specialising in pharmaceutical law.
