I represent funds and entrepreneurs in banking and finance litigation as well as collectors and artists in difficult commercial disputes.

I am also experienced in shareholder disputes, fraud, contractual and regulatory disputes.

I am an accredited solicitor advocate with higher rights of audience in all courts and have represented clients in the High Court. I qualified in Australia in 1996 and moved to London in 1998.

I have had articles published in the New Law Journal and Commercial Litigation Journal.

Disputes in my practice are varied and have included:

- Acting for noteholders in disputes with IBRC and other banks over the expropriation of notes following an exchange offer for new notes which were valued at substantially less than the existing notes, setting precedent in Assenagon Asset Management SA v Irish Bank Resolution Corporation Ltd [2012] EWHC 2090 (Ch) (27 July 2012).
- Advising an art collector about a substantial collection which failed to sell at auction by a reputable auction house.
- Successfully represented three of the defendants in the Michael Douglas & Ors -v- Hello! trial as solicitor-advocate on issues of breach of confidence and privacy.

- Advising a global bank on regulatory matters.
